

National Lineworker Appreciation Day

has been observed annually on April 18 since 2013 following
Hurricane Sandy.

Thank you to our 40+ lineworkers for their hard work and commitment to keeping your power on. They work outdoors year-round, including in stormy weather.

The team is trained to work high in the air and deep in the ground to deliver electricity. It's dangerous work that requires protective equipment and strong communication skills for their safety and yours.

We value working safely and being available to our members every day, all day, to provide reliable electric service.
